COUNCIL SEEKS REPORT ABOUT GORDON

Directs Mayor Quinn to Tell What Has Been Done About Tufts' Right-hand Man

An order directing Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge to make an immediate report on the steps he has taken in regard to the removal from office of Police Captain Herbert Gordon, implicated in testimony at the trial of former District Attorney Nathan A. Tuttle, was adopted by Cambridge City Council by a 12 to 1 vote.

Captain Gordon is now doing clerical work at Police Headquarters, where he was assigned by Police Chief McHarris after he had been discharged, at Attorney-General's request, from the district attorney's office.

Councillor Roland B. Brown, who introduced the resolution calling for a report from the Mayor, rapped the delay in investigating Gordon's case, and declared that "it is time the City Council did something."

He pointed out that Gordon was transferred four weeks ago, and insisted action should be taken by the Cambridge authorities rather than by Allen.

Mayor Quinn, when informed of the Council's action, promised that stenographers from his office have been working constantly to secure the testimony offered at Tuttle's trial and compiling all of it that refers in any way to Captain Gordon.

He added that he would cheerfully have given a report on his investigation if Councilor Brown had asked him for it instead of "playing politics."

FOUR ARRESTED MAIL BANDITS GOT 2 MILLION IN HOLDUP

Twelfth Mysterious Fire in Shoe Factories Since Business Depression Began

Four men were arrested in Lynn today, charged with incendiarism, following the $25,000 fire in the Blaisie Shoe Factory at Mallory and Oxford streets, Lynn, last night.

They were Nathan D. and Joseph K. Kline and Arthur and Henry Schmitt, interested in the business of city and state police and insurance companies to the twelve mysterious fires which have occurred in Lynn shoe factories since the business depression set in.

According to Chief Chas. of the fire department, the blaze in the Blaisie factory was plainly incendiary. When the firemen arrived they found twelve or fifteen small fires going in different parts of the factory, in such a way, as they believe, to preclude the possibility of anything but incendiarism.

The cause of the property loss was mainly due to water.

The Kline and Schmitt were arrested in Lynn District Court today, and were held in $1,000 each for a hearing Nov. 13.

New York Robbers Who Looted Postoffice Truck Escaped With Rich Booty

New York, Oct. 25.—Belief that the loot in Monday night's daring mail truck holdup would exceed $1,000,000 was indicated by postoffice authorities today following a partial check of the contents of the five stolen trunks.

Officials of one Wall street firm not listed as among those affected by the robbery, said that firm had sent $1,000,000 to securities by registered mail on Monday night, but that they had been unable to learn yet whether it was in one of the five pouches taken by the three bandits who held up the truck in lower Broadway.

Knows losses made public so far totaled $45,000 in bonds, mailed to the Chase National Bank, and $100,000 in securities sent out by BNY, Fidelity and Park; $3,400 in bonds

$5,000 Book Title Test to Open November 7

Ready for another contest? Are you one of the hundreds of Boston American readers who lately have asked the editor for "another picture game?"

Be of good cheer. The Boston American is to begin on Monday, November 7, one of the most profitable of all contests. And in many ways one of the most helpful.

For a period of sixty days, we will print each day a picture representing the title of some book. Each picture will appear with its title. It will be the business of contestants to find and write the title.

They will find some assistance in a daily List of Titles. This List will contain among others the Correct Title.

Five thousand dollars will be distributed, at the close of the Book Title Test among those who send in the largest number of Correct Titles. There will be scores of other generous prizes.

The First Prize will be One Thousand Dollars!

mailed by Hough, Hodge & Co., and $1,000 in securities sent out by Calumet, Fish & Co. All these losses were said to be covered by private insurance.

It also was reported that a $50,000 consignment of currency was included in the stolen mail, but this was not confirmed by postoffice authorities. It was said a full list of the losses probably could not be compiled for several days.

The three men who staged the holdup were being sought by a large force of Federal agents and city detectives today, but with no apparent success. A reward of $5,000 for each of the robbers, dead or alive, offered by Postmaster-General Hays, interested interest in the man hunt.

WHISKY WORTH $30,000 SEIZED AT AMESBURY

1,147 Quarts of Canadian Liquor Found Beneath Shipment of Turnips

Amesbury, Oct. 25.—Seven hundred and forty-seven quart bottles of the finest kind of Canadian whiskey were seized by Chief of Police William J. Rogers and three officers and turned over to the Federal officials here today. The liquor was valued at more than $30,000.

The liquor, which was packed in large barrels, was concealed under half a carload of turnips shipped from Prince Edward Island via Boston. No consignee was named, but Benjamin Chockway, a former pork dealer in this city, appeared to see the freight charges when the consignment reached the railroad yard here.

The bill of lading called for 900 bushels of turnips. When word of this consignment began to be leaked abroad in Amesbury Chief Rogers became suspicious and, accompanied by Officers Kellert, Dittus and Morton, went to the point to investigate.

The four worked all night removing the upper layers of turnips that hid the barrels and were then once were on the point of giving up.

TRYING TO SOLVE NEW BRISH PROBLEM

By Associated Press. London, Oct. 25.—Delegates of the Daily Express and the British Government were today waiting a report from a committee endeavoring to find a formula that would make possible a continuance of the conference leading to peace in Ireland.

The committee, consisting of Prime Minister Lloyd George and Austen Chamberlain, for the British Government, and Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins, for the Irish Republic, discussed the matter two hours yesterday, but failed to arrive at any definite solution of the question.

The date for the resumption of the Irish conference was not known here today, and nothing upon which prediction might be based developed over night, but some appeared to believe the chance of success had improved.

It was stated that further pressure was being brought to bear upon the government to adopt legislation that would enable the Irish government to establish its administration in Southern Ireland. It was reported that the powers of the Ulster cabinet were merely nominal until a government was established in Southern Ireland. In some quarters the suggestion that the Ulster cabinet were conferred upon the Belfast Ministry was viewed with anxiety, for, although the government has so far given no indication to pressure, it was asserted this morning the Irish cabinet had made known their determination to withdraw from the conference should such a measure be introduced in Parliament.

Sympathy among Unionists for the Ulster cabinet was introduced in Parliament.

Plaster, and indignation resulting from Eamon De Valera's telegram to Pope Benedict appeared today to be making the allegiance of some Coalition Unionists to the government. It was believed that very little was needed to swell considerably the number of malcontents in political circles.

The London Times said today it was the common view among the government supporters that the "Irish" negotiations cannot survive the blow given them by Mr. De Valera. The view did not appear to be held in ministerial quarters, where, there seemed to be hopeful expectation that the bridge could be constructed over the chasm in the path of the negotiations.

Both girls were pupils at the Prince School in the South End. Vivian had appeared in many a star show in Boston, Worcester and Springfield, and is considered an accomplished singer and dancer for one of her youth.

Vivian is described as five feet, seven inches tall and weighing 135 pounds. She has beautiful black silky hair, a straight nose, with short upper lip, showing a set of pearly white teeth. She wears a gray coat, and had a blue dress.

Irene is about five feet tall, with blue eyes and dark brown hair, and a Dutch clip. She wore a light dress, with blue eyes and dark brown hair, and a Dutch clip. She wore a light dress, with blue eyes and dark brown hair, and a Dutch clip.

Need Fashion cost so much?

IS IT NECESSARY for a few high priced foreign models to carry the entire cost of an expensive foreign trip—is it necessary for a few customers to pay the entire cost of expensive establishments—is it necessary to have all good fashion taxed for beyond the average pocket-book?

Even if one has the means and willingness to pay the price it is necessary to pay more than need be for good style?

We think not. And that is why we are selling Fashion on a new and safer basis. For here is a business dealing the million and with the millions, which makes the cost to each one a matter of fractional cents rather than multiple dollars.

More and more Filene's is first with new fashion. More and more the woman who wants exclusive style comes here for original and distinctive models not seen on every corner.

The Gilet blouse, the Bateau neckline, the Vogue of Black and the Vogue of Purple, the Cape-Costume, the Cape-Cost, the Cape-Cost and the Vogue of Cape—all these are recent Filene fashion novelties.

And those who come to Filene's for Fashion find that the usual high price has been eliminated and that there is still something substantial—VALUE!

U. S. CONSUL STABBED IN MEXICO

Mexican Government Promises Effort to Apprehend Assaulters

By International News Service
Washington, Oct. 26.—Lloyd Burleigh, American consul at Salina Cruz, Mexico, was stabbed on the night of October 24 in the American consulate by two unknown assailants, according to advices received at the State Department today from the United States Embassy at Mexico. Burleigh received two wounds in the left arm, neither of which is serious. He was taken to the hospital. He expressed to the State Department the regret of the Mexican government for the incident, and has given assurance that vigorous efforts will be made to apprehend and punish Burleigh's assailants. Burleigh is a native of Ohio, N. Y. The dispatch to the State Department came from George T. Summerlin, American charge d'affaires at Mexico City. Summerlin did not give details of the circumstances that led to the assault on the consul.

Table Linen

We believe that table linens are now at the lowest prices they will be for several years. Our opinion, based on the best information we are able to gather, is that at this time table linen may be bought with confidence that prices will go no lower. The condition of the flax market and other factors affecting the price of this commodity make it appear that any change must necessarily be an increase.

We offer our customers the best assorted stock we have had in years. The following lot is offered at particularly attractive prices:

RATE FOR LAMPS HIGHER UNDER STATE CONTROL

Cambridge Electric Light Company Gains by Plan, Department Hears

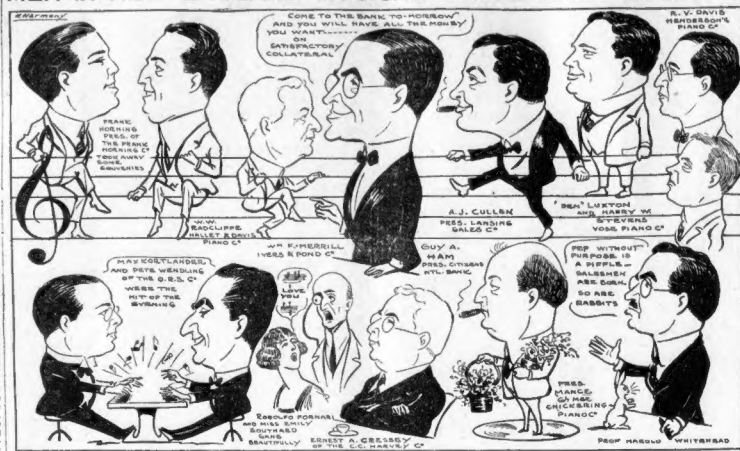

Charges that the Cambridge Light Company had conspired and put into operation a unique plan for "raising" the State were today made to the State Department of Public Utilities by Secretary George Lyman Rogers of the Metropolitan District Commission.

The company, according to Rogers, furnished "guile" for 1,000 street lamps used by the city of Cambridge. When the State took over the Cambridge railway, the State began to pay the bills for the lamps.

The old rate charged the city of Cambridge was $18 a year per lamp. The Cambridge Electric Light Company is now charging $28.50 per lamp for each of the 1,000 in the parkway system.

Rogers says the company has what he terms a "step-rate" plan. The more lamps used by a customer, the higher the rate. The company has been using the same number of lamps formerly used by Cambridge in the parkway system. The company has decided that the city of Cambridge and the Metropolitan District Commission are "separate municipalities" and has gone up $10.00 per year on each lamp now used by the commission.

STUDENT WOMAN'S IDENTIFICATION STILL UNKNOWN

"Identification" of Body Found in Long Island Pond Proves False

By Associated Press
New York, Oct. 26.—With another promising set of clues broken down, the police started afresh today in their efforts to identify the dismembered body of a young woman found in a pond at Long Island City last Saturday and to trace her slayer.

A "positive" identification of the victim as Bertha Becker, a domestic maid last night by a woman who gave the name of Mrs. Elizabeth Richards of Jersey City, was overturned when the police learned that the address given by the woman was fictitious and that the real Mrs. Richards was in a hospital.

The woman had advanced a theory that the victim's legs had been severed to prevent identification by means of a German iron cross and the initials "B. B." which she said had been tattooed above one of Bertha Becker's knees.

A stained butcher's knife and a nightgown found on Staten Island and regarded as possible clues, were eliminated when an analysis showed the stains were rust rather than blood.

Apparently the only hopeful material the police had to work on today was the fact that the body had been found about the victim's head. These bare laundry marks seemed to be the only clue that had been found.

Further efforts were being made today, however, to trace the owner of the shirt and detective working in Long Island City predicted an arrest would be made shortly.

RADER DECRIES "RIPPING BIBLE TO PIECES"

Franklin Paul Rader, exhorting a huge crowd that jammed the Park Street Church to its doors, declared in true Billy Sunday fashion, and declaring "that made men before Harvard and Yale were ever thought of, cheered it in the 'educated crowd' that is ripping the Bible to pieces."

"If there was nothing about education in itself," he said, "but one of the greatest troubles of the educated class is that they do not believe there is such a thing as an elemental mind. A few false ideas before any of these high-brows were born, and he has some of the things that he knows into the Bible."

The evangelist declared no trouble at present in that people are trying to "Christianize the world" and "evangelizing it." "I am in favor of Christianity," he said, "and I am in favor of electing Jesus Christ president of the world."

Rader paid a tribute to the cohesion of the Jewish people for keeping unity despite hundreds of years of persecution.

ARMAMENTS TO BE DISCUSSED BY COLLEGES

Men From 40 Universities at Princeton to Consider Arms Limitation

By Associated Press
Princeton, N. J., Oct. 26.—More than seventy delegates, representing forty universities and colleges, were here today for the intercollegiate conference on the limitation of armaments, which opened at Princeton University this afternoon.

Students of Great Britain were represented by Robert Wilberforce, secretary of the British information bureau at New York, while the Chinese in colleges and universities in the United States sent two delegates.

President Hildner of Princeton was to deliver an address and Professor E. W. Kemmerer, economist, had prepared charts showing the economic consequences and the loss of life caused by the recent war and the general effect of war on life, property and taxes.

Norman Maclellan was to speak of the disarmament question from the viewpoint of a young man who has been through the experiences of war. A mass meeting, open to the public as well as the student body, will be held tonight, with President Hildner in the chair. The speakers include Colonel Franklin D'Olier, fraternal commander of the American Legion, and a general from Princeton; Ermon Mackie, director of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium in 1915 and 1916; Major General John F. O'Hara, commander of the Twenty-Seventh Division during the war; and Dwight W. Morrow, New York.

400 BACKERS OF MURPHY PLAN BIG RALLY

Four hundred friends and neighbors of John R. Murphy attended a conference in the Kenilworth Auditorium, Charlestown, in the interest of his campaign for Mayor.

The committee decided upon a rally to be held in Roughton Hall the night of November 8, when Mr. Murphy will probably make his first campaign speech. Scores of volunteers offered to man the polls on election day, and plans were made for the appointment of numerous committees to canvass every street in Charlestown in the interest of Mr. Murphy.

The executive committee formed at the meeting contains the names of Mayor John R. Murphy, who was prominent in the Curley administration, notably in the case of Edward J. Connelley, who was elected Commissioner under Curley, and Murphy, who was elected Mayor in 1916. Representative James J. Mahoney was chosen chairman of the committee.

CRITICIZES FLAG INCIDENT ON THE ELSIE

American Boat Flew Union Jack Below Stars and Stripes After Race

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—"Perhaps they did not know any better about Elsie, the Gloucester, Massachusetts, challenger for the Fishermen trophy. At any rate, dressing ship, they sent up their signal code flags and the stars and stripes to the main mast, and below the American ensign on the main halyard they flew the Union Jack."

This is what a Canadian yachting expert says in the Toronto Telegram discussing the international event. He writes many details additional from Halifax and says that, "while the flag was wrong, there was no row. The beaten boat flew the British ensign above the stars and stripes and got away with it."

He adds: "It may have been intended as a compliment, but it was stupid."

It was ridiculous for an American ship in a British port to be flying the American flag above the British flag. The very day after her colors had been lowered by a main vessel in fair and square contest.

For the first time it is correct to the flag of one nation above the flag of another is when a ship of the sea-and nation has been captured by a ship of the first.

Halifax is broadly tolerant of everything American and no trouble has been caused by the incident.

"Without the treacherous help of cathartics"

A simple food which gradually replaces laxatives

"H" who can control chronic constipation without the treacherous help of cathartics makes a "booster" of his patient."

This quotation from a doctor's essay on constipation carries a message of great significance to thousands of men and women.

It is now recognized that cathartics never remove the causes of constipation. Indeed, one who states that the indiscriminate use of cathartics is probably one of the most frequent causes of constipation.

For many years there has been pressing need for some simple food that would help restore normal conditions. And now scientists have discovered it in the familiar little cake of Fleischmann's Yeast.

First came the startling discovery that Fleischmann's Yeast in itself is a wonderful food, rich in the mysterious water-soluble vitamins. Then it was found that Fleischmann's Yeast builds up the body tissues, keeps the body resistant to disease.

The need for scientifically tested yeast

Fresh yeast has been proved by recent scientific tests to be a valuable food for correcting run-down condition, constipation, indigestion and certain skin disorders. These original tests were all made with Fleischmann's Yeast. It was found that yeast-vitamin preparations that contain drugs or other substances, Fleischmann's Yeast (Fresh) is a pure food, rich in vitamins, in which it measures up to the high standards set by laboratory tests and hospitals. The familiar 100-gram package with the yellow label is the only form in which Fleischmann's Yeast for Health is sold.

BUSINESS

By R. G. FORBES

In every red-headed human being is the spirit of combat. From the time they can toddle, children learn to match their strength and their games against one another. Schools have their examinations, to what the competitive spirit. Colleges have their scholastic and athletic contests. No community is so small as to be a baseball team eager to pit itself against neighboring rivals. Golf clubs, tennis clubs and so forth have their competitions to bring out the skill of their members. International contests in golfing, in polo, in golf, in athletics, chess, billiards, etc., are now common.

Have the contest between practical Canadian and American fishing boats more to commend it than that of these sporting contests? You will notice that matches and tournaments and the like have to do only with some form of sport or recreation. They are calculated to increase interest and skill in various forms of non-productive effort.

The fishing boat contest, on the other hand, is a direct incentive to the cultivation of industry and progress in the development of a highly useful occupation, an occupation older than the records of man. It is a contest between the members of the best family of fishing boats which supply American and Canadian homes with food from the sea.

The fishing boat contest stimulates interest in the fishing industry, tests stimulate interest only in play. Now, isn't there a suggestion in this for industrial, commercial and domestic tests, mining and agricultural people?

Wouldn't it be feasible to devise contests between teams of workers in different plants?

A good deal is done in the way of contests by some companies, especially in the selling end. Insurance companies, typewriter and lamp companies, appliance companies, employing large forces of salesmen, department stores, public utility companies, others have organized competitions for the highest number of orders, highest sales, etc. There are "hundred percent clubs" and other organizations, membership of which is earned by attaining certain meritorious results. Bonuses, prizes, etc., are awarded to those achieving the best results. Such schemes, intelligently conducted, have proved successful.

You will recall that when Schwab wanted to speed up the production of ships when the war was on, he organized the riveters of different shipbuilding companies were encouraged. One thing, demonstrating that riveters were capable of doing very much more work than they had been in the habit of doing. And the workers entered into the spirit of the thing cheerfully.

Why wouldn't it be a good thing to get up annual contests between the cotton weavers from different mill, cotton rollers, etc., from the textile corporation? Or between the planters, coal miners from different mines, bricklayers, etc., from different companies? Or between the painters, window-cashers, telegraphers, bookbinders, linemen, etc., from different companies? Or between the tailors, ironworkers, street-car drivers, parcel-vendors, letter-carriers, elevator operators, etc., from different companies? Or between the blowers, quarrymen, cotton-pickers, etc., etc., etc.

Wouldn't contests of this kind, embracing every branch of industry which lends itself to accurate measurement of results achieved, help to inject into the work something of the spirit of sport, something of the competitive spirit, something of the spirit of ambition to excel? Wouldn't such contests arouse the very keenest interest and tend to invest even the most hum-drum forms of work with enhanced interest and dignity and pride of workmanship?

Wouldn't you sooner earn distinction as the best workman in your line in America than distinction as the best player or football player or basketball player or golfer or such other of these things? Wouldn't you rather win more real glory in excelling in a field of usefulness than in a field of sport?

LABORERS' UNIONS

Union Chiefs Unwittingly Played Into Hands of Road Heads, Writer Declares

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.
 Chief Correspondent of the Boston American.
 Washington, Oct. 26.—In this town there is no difference of opinion about the meeting which the Labor Board has called in Chicago for today.
 Those who sympathize with labor just as positively as those who are hostile to it, believe that if the laborers allow themselves to lead in opposition to the government the loss to unionism will be enormous.
 It will be just about as great as the railroad managers are hoping will be. The men have played into the hands of the railroad heads, and it is only a matter of time before the strike will be broken by agents of the road managers.
 Only Monday a man who held his office under the Wilson administration said this to me.
 "That has been an old and successful capitalist trick since the great industrial fight began. One of the greatest difficulties of labor movement is the impotence of the men with which they are to be strided into suspicion of their leaders.
 However, although most of the railroads hope for a lasso at Chicago this week, and consequently step back toward the elimination of the unions, such a victory would show the stupidity of capital, if it could mean anything, trouble in the future.
 If labor is unintelligent about its immediate tactics, capital is wise. It is going to use the strike to its advantage, and it means money that it is going to win more with more and more jobs.
 ATTACK LABOR BOARD.
 The Manufacturers Record for October 13, printed an article containing a vicious attack on the Labor Board for being too favorable to labor. Letters to this:
 One evil of the board is that it is making necessary for the railroads to fight a battle with the unions for the purpose of most effectively negotiating with labor boards."
 Here is another well pointed out by this organ of the big interests:
 "Such attempts are bound to prove sympathetic with other laboring people who see this preferred class of railroad employees obtaining special rights, and privileges under national agreements very much more satisfactory than anything they can get in the future."
 But the laboring men who are contemplating a strike against the board put that sentence in their pipe and smoke on it for a while.
 WAITER IN STEEL MAN.
 Mr. Laclede, who writes all this is vice-president and general manager of the Laclede Steel Company of St. Louis. Steel is the main product of the industry. Has it been defeating, while we have been howling at factories and ordinary business men to defeat it.
 Before the war steel rails were twenty-eight dollars a ton. On October 4, last, they were forty-seven dollars. Various kinds of steel, which before the war were four, fifteen and twelve dollars, were now twenty-three, twenty-five and twenty-nine dollars.
 The Steel Corporation made only three hundred and thirty-three million dollars in 1918, the year that was more than twice as much as it had ever before. In 1920 it made five hundred and twenty-eight millions. The next year it made nearly as much.
 EFFECTS OF STEEL MEN.
 And the Steel Corporation heads the fight against union labor. A goodly number of the railroad presidents and managers are mere puppets of the Steel Corporation.
 Let the capitalists try to break down the prestige of bodies like the Labor Board, if they are short-sighted enough to prefer temporary gain to increasing peace. Labor's clear gain is to support such regulation bodies to the utmost.

Destructive Freight Rates

Roads Are Simply Charging More Than the Traffic Will Bear

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The reports of the stimulation of the building industry, occasioned by the fall in the price of steel, are most encouraging. Of course, it was to be expected that building construction would be encouraged by the fall in steel prices. Steel might go down considerably further if we could have a reduction in freight rates which check business today and are largely responsible for the present business depression.

John F. Walsh, chairman of the transportation branch of the National Association of Builders' Exchanges, in a letter to the Interstate Commerce Commission, says:

"No business has ever played or is today playing a larger or more vital part in the economic development and adjustment of our country's condition than the building industry, which now finds itself held in complete restraint by excessive costs."

He then asks the Interstate Commerce Commission for "Relief from the present destructively high freight rates on building material shipments."

A representative of a large steel company recently gave us some figures tending to show that in his branch of industry they had cut steel prices down to the pre-war level, but the selling price was much higher because of the higher freight rates.

The moment that the railroads were put back into private hands by the government after the war they raised their rates almost 40 per cent. The railroads have simply charged more than the traffic will bear, have destroyed other business and destroyed their own business.

"Blowing Up" of the Klux

Perhaps It Taught the Wizard

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The investigation of the Ku Klux Klan, in the language of the Washington reporters, has "blown up." No more witnesses will be called. Perhaps the friends of the Klan, demanding investigation of all secret societies in the country, helped to cause the blowup. In the present state of civilization there is no use in forbidding secret societies, the only thing is to REGULATE them. If you forbid them, you drive them out of sight. Men not so far removed from ancestry that hunted in packs, each pack hating the other pack, naturally like to form little packs of their own, with grips and signals, in place of the marks and yelps of the old packs, and with pack leaders.

Those that contemplate packs as interesting survivals of ancient times observe with interest the pitiful collapse of Mr. Simmons, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, when questions were put to him.

If the Imperial Wizard collapses when questioned by men with faces uncovered, in broad daylight, no wonder the Imperial Wizard counted on frightening superstitious colored men, questioned in the dead of night by the light of flaming torches, surrounded by men in goblin-like masks and fantastic dress.

Scrapping a Great Ship

Seems Pathetic Until You Get Into a Philosophic Mood

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The Potlatch Steel Company has bought from the government the U. S. transport Meade, formerly the British steamship erlin, of the Imman Line.

Built in 1874, at Greenock, Scotland, she was originally known as the Princess Irene, the palace ship of the ocean greyhounds.

The hull of this ship, which weighs 5,641 tons, is of charcoal iron, made in furnaces with an extreme capacity of two tons a day. Today a daily production of 150 tons of steel from one furnace passes without remark.

The Meade had her first government use in 1898 when she carried troops to free the Philippines. During the World War she was used as a training and receiving ship. Now, outworn and outgrown, she goes to the scrap heap.

Somewhat the spectacle of this old ship, once the pride of the seas, being sold for junk seems pathetic until we catch the meaning of the poet's philosophy. Shakespeare tells how

"Imperial Caesar, dead and turned to clay,
May stop a hole to keep the wind away."

For nothing in nature is lost. When one use ends, a new one begins.

The scrapping of the Meade does not scrap her memories nor does it halt the usefulness of her material parts—it merely transforms it.

This venerable ship, though torn to fragments, may conceivably resurface in parts of new dreadnoughts or of magic craft designed to navigate the air.

Her second career may be more glorious than her first.

Man has here a lesson.

City Loses Able Official

The people of Boston who knew Superintendent of Public Schools Frank V. Thompson will feel a great sense of loss in his death.

He was a splendid, fearless, independent, high-minded, forward-looking, able public servant. Never once was he a guilty victim of that passion for cheap notoriety which led public authorities to join in the hue and cry against alleged radicals and to deny to American citizens in the school-teaching profession the right to express liberal opinions freely. He, himself, led in the expression of liberal opinions. His last public appearance, in favor of a State university and in criticism of some of the reactionary policies of our privately endowed colleges, gave us a good idea of the scope and direction of his vision.

Let us hope that Boston will be able to find so good a man to take his place.

Lost Island of Rockali Found

LONDON, Oct. 25.—A French explorer, Major Charcot, has just succeeded in landing upon the "lost" island of Rockali, 300 miles west of the Hebrides—a feat it is claimed which has been achieved by no other man.

There is, in fact, something peculiarly exclusive about islands; they are like that in Sir James Barrie's "Mary Rose," anxious to be visited, but as chary as the most demure of maidens of displaying their charms to the casual passer-by. Like a good love, they are to be wooed and won. They are capricious in their manner.

Maureen, for instance, 300 miles east of Greenland, screens its beauty in a veil of fog so successfully that in 1918 it was seen for the first time for fifty years. The "Boat Island" in Lake Desventurated, after being visible for six or seven weeks, disappears altogether. Nushima, of Japan, is sometimes there, sometimes not.

ARE THE AGED ENTITLED TO HAPPINESS?

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

THEY say that there is no fool like an old fool. Usually, that is the characteristic of a man who marries in middle age—or later. Women, of course, are always young.

The entitled is supposed to be peculiarly appropriate, when an elderly man marries a second time. A cynical suggestion, implying that if youth is foolish enough to entertain the idea of wedded bliss, age—aided by experience or observation—ought to know better.

Doubtless, millions of wisecracking wags were waging to that effect, when the news was flashed nationwide that Dr. George T. Harding, the President's father, had "eloped" (as the papers put it) with his second wife.

The plain facts of the case were: That Dr. Harding aged sixty-eight, had—without the flourish of trumpets (in characteristic Harding family fashion) and to avoid the otherwise inevitable publicity—crossed the Ohio border into Michigan, and there quickly and quietly married a woman of fifty-two.

And she was one whose faithfulness and affectionate devotion the Doctor had appreciated for many years. Why shouldn't they carry out life happily ever after?

Sufficient Happiness Indeed, though they naturally are in the presence of advanced age, the aged are entitled to every joy that they can extract from life.

Note of Thanks

Editor Boston American: The board of directors of the Massachusetts Society for Hygiene extends their gratitude for the splendid publicity given by your paper in connection with our annual meeting on October 25th.

THE FACT is, Marietta, this is a happy world, with the happiness of the children to see who could do the stiltiest for five minutes, not a tense stiltism, but a perfectly natural, rounded pose and perfect quiet.

THE CHILD who is the life of the party, who may have the greatest self-control and the one you least suspect of nervousness may do the most wiggling under the pressure of the moment.

IT HAPPENS more than once in a man's life that the price of his life is the ability to keep still physically and orally.

THE ABILITY of a patient to "hold still" means greater success on the part of the doctor or nurse, and not only will it mean a steeper climb to a clearer mind on the part of both.

JILTED GIRL BECOMES A CYNIC AT 17

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1921, by Winifred Black

I HAVE a letter from Marietta, and she asks me for my advice, but not before she tells me exactly what she is going to do anyway.

In the first page of her letter, Marietta is very sad and lonely. Nothing can ever comfort her, she declares. But about the third page of her epistle—I think a teenage affair ought to be called an "epistle"—Marietta writes the view that she has become a cynic and will always remain a cynic from this, her seventeenth year, until she is as old as Methuselah.

It is a sad story, the one which Marietta tells. It appears that her fiancé, Albert, long time her best friend and love companion, has deserted Marietta, and not only deserted her, but captured and is now holding in the fetters of an engagement of marriage, Albert, since the favorite and would-be suitor of the hand of Marietta herself.

The two have left Marietta to her own devices, and now she is going to break, arrange for the situation upon—herself.

No Faith in Anybody

Never will Marietta believe one word again from any human being, she says, and she contemplates going into retirement and becoming the latter end of the entire race from this time forth.

Her hair is bobbed, she writes, Both Albert and she herself, on the encouragement of the false and faithless Albert, bobbed their hair last Spring. And now Marietta says she will wear her hair bobbed for the rest of her natural life, and she is going to dress in black—it's very becoming to her—and she will wear low-necked ones which she has now worn out. She is now going to speak to Albert as long as she lives, and to Albert she will only say a few cold words when she unavoidably meets him. I have thought that to be a professional cynic at the ripe age of seventeen would be a rare delight. The attitude of a cynic is such a tribute to himself, or herself, and such a desperate effort to get the rest of the world to make Albert and Albert shake in their shoes to know the role adopted on their account by the deserted Marietta.

Alas, Marietta, there are many things to hope for in the world, for you yet! One Albert cannot make the world, or one Albert. From your photograph, which you kindly send me, I can see you will have many admirers of both sexes, if you do not carry your hatred of the world too far.

Happy World After All

I believe if you could give yourself to the making of sugar cakes, to be eaten at tea, with cream, and if you would once in a while wear a pale blue gown with pink roses and carry a feather fan, leaving your black gown, you would be almost as happy as if Albert and she had never existed.

THE FACT is, Marietta, this is a happy world, with the happiness of the children to see who could do the stiltiest for five minutes, not a tense stiltism, but a perfectly natural, rounded pose and perfect quiet.

THE CHILD who is the life of the party, who may have the greatest self-control and the one you least suspect of nervousness may do the most wiggling under the pressure of the moment.

IT HAPPENS more than once in a man's life that the price of his life is the ability to keep still physically and orally.

MT. EVEREST ASCENT IS PREDICTED IN SPRING

Since sending the last dispatch printed in the Boston American, the Everest explorers have made a further attempt on the mountain from the northwest and have satisfied themselves that an ascent of the mountain from the north would be quite practicable in better weather. They met with such furious snowstorms and intense cold, however, that they retired to their base camp in the Kharta valley, where they began packing up, apparently with the intention of returning to Darjeeling, India, for the winter, but they are now planning to attempt the final attack on the mountain by the route discovered this year.
